What is the reason for being an English Teacher?

When I was at secondary school, I had many dreams like being a nurse, a maths teacher and policewoman. Unfortunately, they were only dreams for me because I didn't do anything to make them real. I didn't know what my dream was until I was at 10th grade. At the beginning of that year, I found my role model teacher and I decided to study at foreign language class. My role model teacher who is called Meltem YAŞA, was very disciplined and professional at her job. On the one hand I was afraid of her too much, on the other hand I loved her too much. It was a different emotional situation for me. I tried to speak like her, I tried to use my gesture and mimics like her, I tried to walk like her. Shortly, I wanted to be like her because she was my role model teacher. And to be like her, I studied very hard. As a result, my dear students I can say that this is the reason why I want to be an English teacher.

Tips of Learning English

Among middle and high school age students, English is one of the least favourite academic subject.

- Sometimes we think learning English is a hard work. In fact if we know some strategies and skills, we can improve our study of the English language and enjoy it inside and outside the classroom.
- You should read daily. If you want to improve your ability to read, you should spend at least 20 minutes a day reading books, newspapers, poems, online articles, etc. This will also improve your writing skills.
- You should set clear study time limits. This key is to be consistent. A little study every day is much better than a lot study at once. We can't learn all the grammar rules or learn the new words in a week. Take it slow and easy
- You should take notes. Note taking forces you to write things down and you will learn while you're writing. You have to listen actively to take notes. You can use your notes and revise the subjects for exams.
- You should pay attention what your teacher finds important during the lesson. Some important points are repeated many times and you should highlight them.
- You should ask questions without hesitation when you don't understand. You can form a study group and study together to make it enjoyable. You can compare your notes and exchange your ideas.
- You can listen English songs and try to sing them, also you can follow English series and try to watch them without subtitles.
- If you keep up with your textbook, attend your classes, take notes, complete assignments, you can do well in exams and it will be fun to learn English.

Why Should We Learn English?

English is a World-wide language now. You can come across with some English words everywhere. It is very useful to understand Today's World. In order to follow technological innovations, medical advances, educational developments and so many other fields, we all need English. On the other hand, it is so simple to learn English, you will love it immediately. It is just like a melody. We are all humans and we are in need of making communications with the people around us. It is really exciting to express your feelings and thoughts with a new language. And that also, You can communicate with the people. I think this is cool! English is a very important issue to reach our personal goals and our dreams come true.

Language Acquisition vs Language Learning

Language acquisition and language learning are not the same. There is a big distinction between the two.

As you may have noticed in a daily life, children acquire their mother tongue by communicating with their parents and environment which surrounds them. They have desire to communicate and this wish triggers language acquisition. When a child is five years old, she/he expresses his/her ideas in a very good way. If we take the language and its grammar into consideration, they can speak almost perfectly. Parents never sit with children to explain the rules or the workings of the language. There is no need to study in a systematic way.

As it comes to second language, the struggle is the same with mother tongue for the young learners. Teachers focus more on the communication rather than rules and patterns. Because young learners are not capable of memorizing rules consciously. Unfortunately when it comes to adult students, communication is not important. It is even neglected. Grammar, patterns etc.. become more important. In fact working with adult learners or young learners determines whether they will acquire or learn a language. Young learners acquire their mother tongue and second language as the adults are doing their best to learn it as the other courses like history, maths etc.

Language is a vivid thing. We can't put a language in a grammar or pattern cage. If we put it, we leave it to die. As teachers, if we want students speak a language fluently and if we don't want to put the students' language ability into a cage, we should make students acquire the language not learn it.
